Half day shopping with private driver tour, including traditional shops.

In 1855 Luis Mira founded the traditional cake shop “Casa Mira”, which is well-known for its classic 'turrón', an almond-based nougat most popular in Spain around Christmas. The nougat comes in all sorts of varieties, from the classic Jijona turrón, where Luis Mira came from, and the Alicante turrón, to toasted egg yolk or chocolate turrón. All the products are still handmade, using the finest ingredients in the traditional way without preservatives or artificial colourings and even Queen Isabel II used to be provided with Christmas turrón by Luis Mira.

It was in 1858 when Manuel de Diego founded the “Casa de Diego”, a business specialized in the fan market in Madrid. Located on Madrid's main square, Puerta del Sol, this is a speciality shop for typical Spanish fans or 'abanicos', shawls, walking sticks and umbrellas. All the items are first-quality, exclusive and hand-made and some are real art works, like the fan used by Princess Leticia at her royal wedding.

Nestled in the heart of Madrid, Galerías Canalejas stands as a paragon of opulence and sophistication. This exclusive enclave is a sanctuary for luxury shopping, with renowned boutiques like Chanel, Louis Vuitton, and Gucci gracing its halls. Immerse yourself in the world of high-end fashion and savor the flavors of the culinary arts at the Michelin-starred restaurant, Monchis. As you explore this elegant destination, you'll discover an atmosphere of timeless grandeur, making Galerías Canalejas an iconic and unforgettable experience. Other traditional stores are the Casa Crespo, specialised in espadrilles, which are footwear made of natural fibre, and the antique Casa Talavera which is famous for its traditional ceramics.
